Introduction to the Personal Report

Thank you for completing the Styles questionnaire. This report provides you with summary feedback about your motives, preferences, needs and talents in a number of work relevant areas.

When reading this report of your professional style, please remember that it is based on the information that you have provided. It describes how you perceive yourself, rather than how you might be seen by someone else. Nevertheless, research suggests that self-report can be a powerful predictor of how you will operate at work.

Information is provided on the 36 Styles dimensions, which are grouped under 12 section headings for each of the four major clusters - Thought, Influence, Adaptability and Delivery. Each dimension consists of 3 facets.

Your results combine your rating and ranking responses, and have been compared with those of a large group of professionals. For each of the dimensions your score is graphically represented on a 1-10 scale. The dimension score indicates how extreme your results are: Scores of 5 and 6 are typical of the comparison group while 1 and 10 are extreme scores achieved only by about 1% of the comparison group. Beneath each dimension name are verbal descriptions which represent the 3 facet scores that comprise the dimension score. Major variations in the verbal descriptions within a dimension are indicative of a broad range of facet scores, and as such merit reflection and discussion.

On some dimensions (e.g. 'Reliable') most people will rate themselves highly on the relevant questions. As a consequence, and because the results are relative, you may find that you score lower than you might have expected in such areas. It is also important to bear in mind that scores should be interpreted in terms of what is desirable for a particular job role. For example, being 'Conforming' may be desirable for administrative jobs that require strict adherence to rules and procedures but may be undesirable for senior roles that require some degree of risk taking and ingenuity in overcoming bureaucratic rules and procedures.
